

Radiation defects in lithium fluoride by various ions

Rohozka R, Trautmann C, Schwartz K, Necas V
JOURNAL OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING 51 (2000) 151-153

In LiF, the formation of defects upon electronic excitations was studied using various ions with energy 11.4 MeV/u. The induced damage was revealed by the technique of selective chemical etching. Track etching was only successful in those cases where the linear energy transfer of the ions had surpassed a critical threshold of approximately 11 keV/nm.